

NEW REENTRY COUNCIL

NASH | EDGECOMBE | WILSON

Going Home

2012 – STATEWIDE
COMMUNITY REENTRY
NEED & RESOURCE
ASSESSMENT

2013 – NCCAA BECOMES
DESIGNATED
INTERMEDIARY AGENCY

2014 – REENTRY COUNCIL
FORMED & SERVICE
DELIVERY BEGINS

2015 – CURRENT – STAFF &
COUNCIL MEMBER
TRANSITIONS TO BUILD
CAPACITY

Challenges

- Tri-County Council
- Lack of transportation options
- Community buy-in
- Local politics
- Stigma

- Refined Council Structure
 - Nash/Edgecombe Executive Committee
 - Wilson Executive Committee
- Strong Council leadership
- More than 500 people enrolled last programmatic year
- Improved partner relations (employers, nonprofits, faith-based, local government, law enforcement, etc.)
- Reentry Week Events
 - 2 Resource Fairs
 - 1 Stakeholder Luncheon
 - 1 Block Party (200+ attendees)
- Leveraged funds (Gov. Crime Commission, Z Smith Reynolds, NCCAA, PNC Bank, NCDPS)
- Dedicated & skilled staff
- Second Chance Awards (Edgecombe County & City of Rocky Mount, NCDPS)
- Positive Media Coverage

Successes

In The News

Public News Service Certified

TOPICS REGION ESPAÑOL SUPPORT & SUBSCRIBE SUPPORTERS

Program Offers Second Chance for NC Citizens

Get more headlines like this via email

SHARE THIS ARTICLE

February 29, 2016
ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. – Reducing the number of people who reoffend after being released from prison and increasing public

NEWSCASTS

PNS Daily Newscast - February 28, 2019
Michael Cohen testifies under oath that his former President Trump was "a liar, con man" and more. Also Thursday roundup: We'll take you to a state where it continues to March for Their Lives. Plus, transitional relief for some hurricane survivors is about to come.

DAILY NEWSCASTS

ISSUE REGION LATEST

- ND Attorney Shortage Means Access to Justice
- Hearing for HBI Bill to Reveal Medicaid Work Mandate
- Free Aid on Federal Taxes Available in North Dakota
- FEMA Dollars Trickle In as Hurricane Relief Continues

Rocky Mount TELEGRAM

News Sports Life Business Schools Opinion Tarboro Obits Photo Galleries

Challenges abound in helping ex-offenders reintegrate into society

Brie Handgraaf
Saturday, September 20, 2014

TARBORO – More than 3,600 people in a seven-month time frame are set to be released from state prisons and jails in Nash, Edgecombe and Wilson counties. The NEW Reentry Council works to help those ex-offenders reintegrate into society.

"The need is great," said N.C. Community Action Association Fellow Krystina Dillard. "Individuals are coming back with great needs and this area has been designated by the state as a high need population."

Dillard said the grant-funded program serves the area by building

The Wilson Times

WILSON'S LOCAL PRINT AND DIGITAL COMMUNITY INSTITUTION SINCE 1896

NEWS SPORTS LIFE OPINION OBITUARIES PHOTOS CLASSIFIEDS PUBLIC NOTICES WAW SUBSCRIBE / RENEW CONTACT

Support sought for reentry council

Thank you for being one of our most loyal readers. Please consider supporting community journalism by subscribing.

Posted Monday, April 10, 2017 10:30 pm

Sharon Goodson

By Drew C. Wilson

Times Staff Writer

The North Carolina Community Action Association wants to reintroduce the Nash, Edgecombe and Wilson Reentry Council to Wilson County.

Sharon Goodson, executive director of the association, a statewide membership group of 37 nonprofits across the state, addressed members of the Ex-Offenders Advisory Group Monday in Wilson.

We Can Help

Auto Accidents • Negligence
Serious Injuries • Wrongful Death
Personal Injury

Taylor

Law Office

W. Earl Taylor, Jr.

243-5500

605 W. Nash St. • Wilson, NC 27893

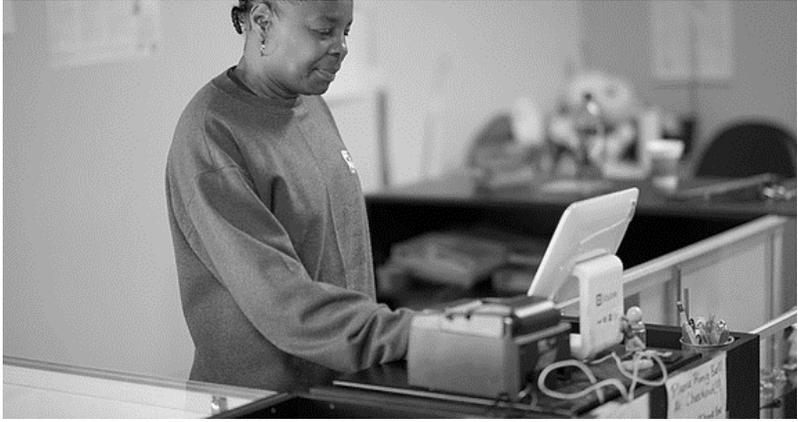

newgroundscoffeeforgood.com

Sustainability

Going Home Documentary

- Show here.

Faces of Success
